Previous to the establishment of the Gáhl-dán chair by Tsongkhapa, there would appear to have been no great patriarchs, or head abbots, of the Lamaïc priesthood; but the principle being once established, the attainment of this rank became an object of ambition, and the great abbots of Gáhldán were soon eclipsed by the superior piety, greater learning, and more active zeal of the abbots of Tashi-Lhunpo.† But the fame of Tsongkhapa was confirmed. He had established the annual feast of "intense supplication," which is still observed, and had originated the great sect of Gelukpa (the virtuous), which are distinguished from the older sects by a yellow dress. This sect is now the most numerous in Tibet, and both the Dalai Lama of Lhasa and the Tashi Lama of Tashi-Lhunpo belong to it. Tsongkhapa's memory is still venerated throughout Tibet. Pictures of him are hung up in all the temples, and the holy impressions of his hands and feet are said to be preserved

Gedun Tub-pa ("the perfect Lama"), the founder of Tashi-Lhunpo, was born in A.D. 1339. He built the temple in 1445, and died in 1474. Before his death he had supplanted the abbots of Gáhldán in the estimation of the people, and his successors have enjoyed the reputation which he established: for previous to his time the great abbots of Gáhldán had been elected by the choice of the Lamas; but the bold and original mind of Gedun Tub-pa devised the present system of a perpetual incarnation. He himself was said to be an incarnation of the celestial Bodhisatwa Padma Páni; and at his death he relinquished the attainment of Buddhahood, that he might be born again and again, for the benefit of mankind. He died in 1473, and in 1474 his successor Gedun Gya-tsho (the Ocean of Lamas) was discovered as an infant by the possession of certain divine marks. The fifth in succession, Navang Lozang Gyatsho, founded the hierarchy of Dalai Lamas at Lhasa, in 1640, and made himself master of the whole of Tibet. In 1643 he rebuilt the Potála monastery, and in 1650, after repeated solicitations, he paid a visit to the Emperor of China. The inscription of the Emperor Khang-hi, engraved on stone, calls the grand Lama of Lhasa, who had been reigning in 1642 (that is, Navang-Lozang), the fifth Dalai Lama. But he was in fact the first Dalai Lama, although he was the fifth Tashi Lama who had
